FLIGHT FILE COPY

Dear Agent,

With reference to Wizz Air Ground Handling Manual:

- During turnaround, including immediate crew change - Cabin Crew is to be ready to accept passengers within 6 minutes after the last passengers have disembarked the aircraft.
- On a First Wave or cold aircraft (not immediate crew change), Cabin Crew is to be ready to accept passengers 25 minutes prior STD/ETD.

In case when cabin preparation takes longer, delay code 66 should be used for the respective time over the standard 6 minutes.

At the target time of cabin ready to board departing passengers shall be made available to board aircraft – waiting at the final stop position before the aircraft:

- in case of boarding by bus: First bus waiting in front of aircraft
- in case of walking boarding: Passengers waiting at the last existing stop line before a/c.
- in case of boarding by jet bridge: Passengers waiting at the final holding point on a jetty

Passengers will be brought to aircraft as per the standard target cabin ready to board time without the need of explicit approval or request from crew.

Senior Cabin Attendant will advise if, due to exceptional circumstances, they are unable to accept passengers within the standard time and will advise the adjusted target cabin ready to board time.

Exception circumstance could be late arrival of crew to aircraft, extra cleaning needed, crew has to clear immigration, crew swap, etc.

The precise times applicable to the flight in object are as follows:

FW / Cold Aircraft
Target cabin ready to board time (LT)	__ : __
Adjusted cabin ready to board time (LT)	__ : __

Turnaround
Last passenger disembarked at (LT)	__ : __
